 Here's another recipe for using KARO, sent me by the U. S. Food Administration:
 JELLY—Select a fruit that is rich in pectin—apples, plums, grapes or currants. Wash fruit, add sufficient water and boil gently for one-half to three hours. It requires long boiling to liberate the pectin, the jelly making substance in the fruit. Drain juice. To each cup of juice add 3 cups of corn syrup. Boil the juice until it is reduced to about ¾ cup and add it to the corn syrup which has been boiling for 10 or 15 min. Continue boiling until the jelly test (sheeting from the spoon) is secured. Should take only 5 to 8 min.
